This IAWHP Preconference offers an opportunity for health and fitness professionals to grow their knowledge and understanding of the global worksite health promotion field. This unique workshop will connect attendees with worksite health promotion industry leaders for interactive activities on gaining/expanding skill sets to best position themselves in the worksite health promotion marketplace. IAWHP is the first global association dedicated to the advancement of worksite health promotion practitioners. IAWHP offers resources and tools to enhance the understanding of current practices and programming strategies at the worksite.
